Join us to learn about the intersection of art, industry, and the many careers available in the geosciences. Spend a day at Penn State University Park with scientists and students from the College of Earth and Mineral Sciences to see what women working in the geosciences are doing today, and experience the new exhibit in the EMS Museum and Art Gallery, "Women’s Work.” The exhibit features historical paintings of industry in Pennsylvania as portrayed by women artists, serving as a time capsule into the relationships between the fine arts, industry, and education in America.
